

Libations, Live Music and Networking

After a busy day of business appointments yesterday, our delegates were invited to join DTI South Africa for Tuesday evening's networking reception. Bradley Brouwer, Regional Manager of Asia Pacific, kicked off the proceedings with a speech on the growth of tourism in South Africa. With 10 million tourists visiting in 2009 and the highest number of repeat visitors in the world, it's clear that they hold the secrets to success.

Attendees were invited to throw their business cards into a hat for a raffle to win a once in a lifetime trip. Sean Hastings Gayle, Head of Business Development for Hostelbookers.com, celebrated jubilantly after hearing that he had won 2 nights at the Daddy Long Legs Art Hotel, a 21 day overland trip and a chance to try shark-cage diving, all for 2 people. We are jealous, but we hope he has a great time!

A special liqueur on offer for the evening was Amarula, made from the marula berry. Legend has it that the marula berry is even capable of intoxicating elephants in the South African grasslands. This offering, along with the live South African jazz band playing at the event, guaranteed that all delegates in attendance had a great evening, although not quite enough Amarula to intoxicate an elephant.

There's Still Time To Book Your Dragon Bus Tours!

As China's only independent travel network, Dragon Bus offers a variety of opportunities to see China in all its glory. As this year's WYSTC is being held in their "own back yard," Dragon Bus are offering tour days to all delegates who want to see the sites of Beijing. With access to a variety of buses and several bilingual Western trip leaders, you are guaranteed a hassle-free and enjoyable day.

For those of you who still haven't had the chance to see Beijing or its highlights, the
